COMPREHENSIVE MULTI-HAZARD EMERGENCY PLANS

Fire is just one of the many threats a commercial or residential building can face. It is important to be prepared for other potential threats, including: earthquakes, floods, hurricanes, and human-related hazards like active shooters or bomb threats.

MULTI-HAZARD PLANNING

Multi-hazard planning is not regulated or required for most buildings. However, to reduce liability risks and protect lives, owners and building managers must still recognize the importance of planning and establishing best practices in case of an emergency.

WHAT YOU CAN EXPECT FROM YOUR MULTI-HAZARD PLAN:

Custom-designed plans that are unique to each one of your properties.

End-to-end support from our team of experienced professionals.

Role-specific emergency response planning and training that ensures building personnel are prepared for emergency situations.

Reduced liability risks and costs in the event of emergency-related injury or loss of life on your property.
